Ancient Egyptian Gods Comprehension

Introduction

There were hundreds of gods and goddesses in ancient Egypt. Often they had the body of a human and the head of an animal, which looks quite strange to us! But who were the most important gods and goddesses and why were certain animals chosen?

Animal Heads and Human Bodies

Many Ancient Egyptian gods were shown as anthropomorphic (having human form) as the Egyptians believed that it brought the gods closer to the daily lives of humans. Animals were chosen with the same characteristics of the gods they represented: The goddess of war, Sekhmet, had the head of a lion because lions are very strong and usually win in battle.

Ra

Ra was one of the most important Egyptian gods. Ancient Egyptians believed that in the beginning there was only a vast ocean and Ra rose up, like the Sun, and created all living creatures. They believed that he was in control of the seasons. The Sun represented light, warmth and growth. He had a falcon head because they have keen sight. They believed he would soar across the horizon and see everything that was happening on earth.

Anubis

Anubis is one of the best known Egyptian gods. Anubis had the black head of a jackal. He was given the head of a dog because in Ancient Egypt many types of wild dogs roamed the cemeteries (there people were buried), so they appeared to be the guardians of the grave yards, looking after the dead. Ancient Egyptians believed that Anubis supervised the weighing of a dead person's heart against the feather of truth. Anubis helped Osiris to decide who would go on to the Afterlife.

Conclusion

So now you know the names of some important Egyptian gods and why some of them have animal heads. Why don't you see if you can find out more about other Ancient Egyptian gods?
