

Friday 1st May.

English: Edit your work.

To edit your work effectively, you have to read it through with different views.

- First, read through it and check it makes sense. If there are any sentences that don't make sense, rewrite them on a new piece of paper.
- Next, check your spellings. Use your sounds, a computer dictionary or your spelling mats.
- After that, check through to make sure you have got capital letters at the start of a sentence and full stops at the end. Do you have commas after a fronted adverbial? Have you used a question mark or exclamation mark?
- Are there any words that you think you could make better? Sad, happy, nice, scared are all really easy words to use. Can you challenge yourself?

Well done! If you have finished and you are happy with your story, why don't you publish it? You could type it or rewrite it up in your best handwriting.
